ERAU's Project Pengyou Visits Cottonwood Public Library

On Saturday, April 4th students from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University's Project Pengyou did a presentation at the Cottonwood Public Library. Project Pengyou is a chapter of the international organization designed to energize the next generation of diplomats and business people working between the United States and China. The club was initiated by President Barack Obama to foster increased trips by American students to study in China.

The Project Pengyou students showed a Power Point presentation with pictures of China and discussed their Chinese Homestay experiences. They talked about their living arrangements with their Chinese families, shopping, and foods and presented a lesson in Mandarin. Attendees were treated to a lesson on Chinese Brush writing and received a bookmark with their name written in Chinese.
